> MERIDIAN, Sept. 1, 1876. To Hon. J. Z. George:

Congress, spide before dinner. And in the his last annual message. It no doubt originated in the lurking, know-nothing hostility to the Catholics, but the conjecture that they are the only body of religionists who would oppose the proposition to tax church property, is widely mistaken. The Catholics do not own the largest amount of church property in the country: they are surpassed by the Methodists alone, and very largely surpassed by the Protestants in the aggregate. The census of 1870 shows the good people of Leflore and Carroll was unbounded—that the dinner prepared States to have been, in that year, $354, 483,581. Of this the Catholics owned

A dozen or more streets, or broad passages run the entire length of the building (1830 feet,) and by following these—down one and up the other—the visitor can get a very good idea of what is on exhibition. In my tour, I came across the magnificent display of woolen and cotton goods from the Mississippi Mills at Wesson. This exhibit attracts much attention, and no little surprise is expressed that such superior cloths are manufactured away down in Missis-J. W. last and the least From Machinery Hall, you pass to Mesorial Hall, or Art Gallery, constructed of ranite, iron and glass- 365 feet in length, 210 feet in width, and 50 feet high. This is the great centre of attraction to a majority of the visitors, and here one can spend a week gazing upon tine pulutings and statuary. England, France, Austria and Italy excel in the variety and excellence of their exhibits. Several paintings contributed by Queen Victoria, attract special attentionchief of which is the Marriage of the Prince of Wales, 1863. The Temptation in Paraiso, the Banquet Scene from Macheth, the Widow's Son raised to life, the fall of Riszi, the last Roman Tribone, Samson and Delllab, the Death of Julius Caesar, Rizoay protecting the bodies of her sors from the birds of prey, (2d Samuel 21:10) the landing of Columbus, Landing of the Puritage battle of Gettysburg, Venice doing homage to Catherine Cornaro, are some of the principal oil paintings; while in the way of statuary, it would futigue your space to mention the most prominent. A twenty-five cent catalogue gives the visitor the name of each painting and statue, and the name of the author and sculptor. There are ome paintings and statues here that modesty and decency should have excluded, and there are others that remind the Southern man in ways most disagreeable of the

In the Agricultural Building, I found the few articles sent from Mississippi-all displayed to best advantage. A bushel of wheat, sent by W. M. Smith, of Booneville, is pronounced very superior; Mr. Me-Gaughey, of Verona, and Mr. Sartain, of Water Valley, have some very fine cotton, which has been sampled by the judges, but the awards will not be known for some

The Government building will eccupy a full day to inspect it. The Army and Navy are here illustrated in the minutest details. The Smithsonian Institute and Patent Office, at Washington, have sent here, everything that is novel or curious in their collections. In one case you worn by Washington, when he resigned bis amission at Annapolis, his swords, camp thest, camp bed, tent poles, etc. The Woman's Building is also one of the pecial attractions, sud one of the greatest enriesities, therin is a full-sized female ness, in batter made by Mrs. S. Caroline S. Brænks, of Heleus, Ark ; sculptured in April, 1876, opon a kitchen table, ith a common butter ladle, broom-s'raws, cedar sticks, and camels' hair pencil, without instruction or model, and brought in a fifteen luch milk pan, a distance of 2000 miles. It is kept on ice. Thousands of photographs of it are sold at twenty-five cents a copy. But I did not make the tour of these and other buildings, until I had first visited the

MI-SISSIPPI HEADQUARTERS Here I met with quite a number of Misssippians, whose names I would mention, but for the fact that all who register are reported to THE CL_RION. I found Major Langley (he has been promoted since he came here), and Tazwell Jones at their posts. A dozen or more ladies were in the sitting room, and many Mississippians were in the office reading letters from home, or reading the Strte papers on file. There is a constant stream of visitors at our building. While I was there, one lady inquired if it was the style of building common in Mississippi. Another lady wanted to get some of the most, and Tazwell gave her a was a Club organization at Faulkner on yesterday of eighty members. Faulkner is eight unles north of here. There was also to be an organization at Ruckersville, four miles east of Faulkner, on the same day; have not heard from there. investment. Other State buildings are more extensive, and expensive, but none (except the one used jointly by Colorado and Kansas) attracts as many visitors. There is necessarily a good deal of redtape in the management of such an affair as this. Here, for instance, is the modus operandi of obtaining a press pass. First, you pay fifty cents to get in ; second. If your applies

Well, I have devoted a portion of three days to the great show, and have seen but very little of it. The whole affair is simply immense. I noticed hundreds of visitors with their books and pencils, noting down the principal attractions as they passed along; but as I have not the time, nor you the space for details, I will simply give a few items for the information of visitors yet to come.

The area cuclosed for the purposes of the Exhibition is 236 acres. Of this space, twenty-one acres are occupied by the main building, which is constructed entirely of iron and glass. The miscellaneous exhibits of the different nations are here tastefully arranged, and so plainly designated that no
